

AL HILTON HEADS TULE WATER ASSN.

PORTERVILLE, Apr. 26 — Administration of Tule river water, and storage back of Success dam, perhaps moved into a "New era" this week when representatives of major water rights holders on the river organized the Tule River association, with Al Hilton, president of the Pioneer Water company, as chairman.

Object of the new association is to serve as the unit through which release of stored water back of the dam is accomplished in accordance with a recently-signed, temporary contract with the federal government, and to generally serve as the agency through which future water negotiations on the Tule will be handled.

Other officers are: Allen Sanborn, Porterville Irrigation district, vice chairman; Ernie Northup, manager of the Porterville Irrigation district, temporary secretary; and Melvin Frasher, Lower Tule Irrigation district, treasurer. Northup is also water master on the river.

J. H. O. Emery represents the Vandalia Irrigation district in the association; L. T. Robinson, of the Kaweah-Tule River association, represents the downstream water users.

Alternates who have been named include: S. M. Barnes, Kaweah-Tule River association; Ray Hutchinson, Lower Tule district; and Jim Richards, Porterville district.

The five Tule river water interests represented are Vandalia, Porterville and Lower Tule Irrigation

FINAL PAPER DRIVE SATURDAY FOR BAND FUND

PORTERVILLE, Apr. 26 — Final paper drive for the Panther band and Madrigal singers' On To Seattle fund is set for Saturday, with Claubes Pharmacy, in Porterville, established as a central pickup point.

Persons who have newspapers that they want picked up at home should contact Mrs. Hack Hutchinson, Mrs. Viri Hughes, or Mrs. Ed. Rouch.

FRED DRESSLER Sr., nationally-prominent cattleman from Gardnerville, Nevada, who will judge fat beef at the 1962 Porterville fair.

Top Livestock Men To Judge At May Fair

PORTERVILLE, Apr. 26 — One of the nation's leading cattlemen — Fred Dressler, Sr., of Gardnerville, Nevada — will judge fat beef cattle at the 1962 Porterville fair.

Dressler is immediate past president of the American National Cattlemen's association; among the top flight shows at which he has judged are the National Western Stock show at Denver, and the International Livestock Exposition at the San Francisco Cow Palace, and he has served on the screening committee for the famous Red Bluff Bull sale.

At his Nevada ranch Dressler runs purebred polled and horned Herefords, as well as commercial cattle; he is one of the nation's first breeders of polled Herefords.

Judging of Future Farmer and 4-H club beef is set for the opening day of the fair, May 17, starting at 8:30 a.m. Grand champion judging is slated for 7 p.m.

Another nationally-known judge, Cliff Knight, of Bakersfield, will judge dairy animals. Knight has judged at the International Livestock show in Chicago.

Judging hogs will be Norman Zipser, of Modesto, who last year

CUTTING HORSE SHOW, BANQUET SET

PORTERVILLE, Apr. 26 — A cutting horse contest was approved as a new feature of the 1962 Porterville fair, and plans were made to continue the livestock awards banquet at a meeting of directors of the Porterville fair held Monday evening at the judicial district court office.

The cutting horse open event was scheduled for 5 p.m. on opening day of the fair, May 17, with chairman of this typically western show, Wayman Neufield, stating that some of the finest cutting horses on the coast will be brought in for the Porterville fair. Assisting Neufield with arrangements is Russell Reece.

Setting up the livestock awards banquet, scheduled for 6:30 p.m. on Saturday, May 19, is Reed Hastings, International dealer in Porterville. All junior livestock exhibitors, plus poultry and rabbit exhibitors, will be given a ticket to the banquet at which all major livestock awards for the fair will be made.

Parents, and other interested persons, may purchase dinner tickets for $1.75; exhibitor and adult tickets can be picked up at the Hastings Equipment commercial booth on the fair grounds.

Assisting with coordination of the banquet are Bob Bennett, fair director, and Bruce Ward, who is in charge of all fair trophies and awards.

Other routine details were handled during the Monday meeting. Attending were: A. K. Hodgson, board chairman; Bob Board, Judge George Carter, Chet Gilbert, Wilbur Moench, Rolla Bishop, Lloyd Rider, Richard Owen, Loren Schmid, Guido Lombardi, Bill Rodgers, Ward, Bennett, Reece, Hastings and Neufield.

COMMERCIAL EXHIBITS TO GET RIBBONS

PORTERVILLE, Apr. 26 — Commercial exhibitors at the Porterville fair, May 17, 18, and 19, will have a chance at the blue ribbon when all commercial displays are judged for excellence and attention to theme of the 1962 fair — Fiesta.

Judging of exhibits will start at 6 p.m. on opening day of the fair, May 17, with three major categories set up: Main groups, broken into concessions, commercial; special inside exhibits,

COUNTY 4-H TEAM SECOND IN JUDGING

SAN FRANCISCO, Apr. 26 — Tulare county 4-H livestock judging and grading team placed second in competition at the Junior International Livestock exposition in the Cow Palace during the Easter vacation period; 37 California counties had teams in the contest.

On the Tulare county team were: Vic Child, Barry Weldon, Mike Bennett and Greg Schmid, of the Vandalia club, and Henry Owen, of the Ducor club. They finished just four points back of the winning team from Shasta county.

Owen Hoover Will Ride May 5 As Grand Marshal Of Western Parade That Will Open Roundup Weekend

By Bill Rodgers

Owen Hoover, who first saw Porterville's Main street back in 1905 when it was "hub deep" in mud, will take another look on May 5, when he rides through the modern Porterville business district as Grand Marshal of the Western parade that will open the Porterville Roundup weekend, May 5 and 6.

And Hoover will bring his famous dancing parade horse, "Diana", out of retirement for "another ride, just for old times sake."

When Hoover arrived in Porterville by train 57 years ago, a heavy rain was falling. He took a room at the Arlington hotel, but it was the next day before he could get down town, since the Main street bridge across the Porter slough had washed out.

The following morning, however, he managed to get across the slough and found plenty of activity in the center of town: Jack Doty's freight wagon, carrying a full load of lumber out of the mountains, had mired down in the middle of Main street, and a 14-horse team was unable to budge it.

"A lot of men were working to get the wagon moving," Hoover recalls. "They would jack up the wheels, move the load a foot or so, then go into Dave Mosier's saloon to talk things over. Eventually they got the wagon out and Doty was able to continue on down the muddy street."

Hoover recalls that in those days "there wasn't a foot of pavement on Main street, and no sidewalks — just board walks in front of the stores." And the town, socially and politically, was pretty well divided into north and south by Porter slough.

Born in Minneapolis, Minnesota, Hoover came West when he was 16 years old to visit an uncle, Joe

ROUND-UP QUEEN SELECTION SUNDAY; WESTERN WEEK OPENS SATURDAY IN PREPARATION FOR MAY 5-6 SHOW

PORTERVILLE, Apr. 26 — The Round-Up Queen for the 15th Annual Porterville Round-Up will be named on Sunday, at the Rocky Hill Arena. The five contestants competing for the honor are Miss Pat Bastian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bastian, Miss Sharon Fioro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fiori, Miss Maytie Gemmell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gemmell, Miss Mickie Norwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Norwood, and Miss Judy Weisenberger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Weisenberger.

The contest is based equally on ticket sales, scholarship and horsemanship. The ticket sales from which each contestant will receive 10% of her sales will close tomorrow.

Scholarship will be judged Saturday, April 28, at 10 a.m., after which the contestants and judges will be guests of the Orange Belt Saddle club, sponsors of the rodeo, at luncheon.

Horsemanship judging will be held at 10 a.m. at the Rocky Hill arena on Sunday; the contestants and their families will be guests of the Orange Belt Saddle club at lunch following announcement of the winner and her two attendants.

The winner of the contest will be proclaimed Queen at a Coronation Ball on Friday, May 4, at Porterville High school, the ball being for high school and college students only. The winner, besides reigning as Queen, will receive a complete western costume, trophy, and $100 scholarship to the college of her choice. The two

Tule River Sporting Goods — Springville

Water is high on all forks of the Tule river for the Saturday opening of Trout season, but is surprisingly clear — only slightly discolored. The only thing that can change this would be a fairly heavy rain toward the last of this week. Bait fishing should be very good everywhere.

All regularly planted areas in the Tule river watershed will be well stocked with catchables for the opening, and the catchables are the largest we have ever had this early. Best fishing for plants will be from Springville to Coffee Camp, Camp Wishon, Camp Nelson, Bear Creek, and the area around the Moorehouse fish hatchery. The road will be open to Quaking Aspen, but not on to Peppermint creek.

The North Fork of the Tule (fly fishing only) is lowest and clearest of all the forks, and should be very good wet fly water. The road will be open to the public Friday, April 27 — it is rough but dry.

The South fork (Indian Reservation) will be closed to all public fishing again this year.

Big and Little Kern rivers, all back country lakes and streams, will probably be inaccessible because of heavy snow. None of the pack stations will be open.

GETTING THE JOB DONE

Two examples came up this week relative to getting things done through cooperation of community groups and individuals — both involving a considerable number of persons, one of major economic importance, the other of lesser importance.

The first — formation of the new Tule River association to handle administration of water now that Success dam is in; the second involving a summer recreation softball diamond.

As for the water problem, there have been, over a period of months, many hours of discussion regarding Success reservoir storage and water release schedule based on water rights — and some of those discussions have reached the bitter stage.

But talking, compromising, giving and taking here and there, understanding the other fellow's problem, has finally brought agreement for the present year.

And it may well be that formation of the Tule Water association marks the beginning of a new era and new concepts along the historically controversial Tule river.

As for the softball problem — and it most certainly was a problem to those citizens directly interested — it looked for a while as if there would be no place to play this summer, what with the old lighted field on the high school campus not available, and various kinds of teenage leagues taking up the city municipal field.

But ball players, city officials and high school officials got their heads together, discussed the problems involved, and, as is usually the case when people get together and talk things out, found an answer — the answer in this case being use of Jamison stadium, on the college campus, for summer softball.

As the community grows, living becomes more complicated in many areas of activity, but there is still a wide range of possibility in solving problems through cooperation of various public agencies and interested citizens.

The widely separated problems of water and softball this week proved it.

NEW FRONTIERSMEN STOP RUSTLERS AT PROFIT PASS

THERE WAS QUITE A commotion somewhere West of Pecos along the New Frontier recently. Some of those varmints from the big steel spread threatened to break off the reservation and bruise the pocketbooks and sensibilities of the citizenry. The big steelers are a restless bunch of bad men, who are motivated by evil thoughts of efficient production and the profit motive; which proves that they have larceny in their hearts, according to New Frontiersmen.

THEY WERE THWARTED IN their efforts to rustle a higher price by the staunch Marshal of the New Frontier, good old J.F.K. Now this good old J.F.K. comes from a spread that has never been known to back away from a profit, but things look a little different when someone else is making the grab.

WHEN THE BIG STEEL gang began getting restive and showed signs of straying out of the price corral, the Marshal rounded up a posse and headed them off at the pass, Profit Pass, that is. This posse was a motley gang that came from different outfits scattered through the Big Government rangeland. That territory is loaded with New Frontiersmen and is growing by the day, with new deputies being appointed all the time.

THE POSSE DID NOT TAKE off on a frontal attack, but worked by taking a few pot shots at stationary targets and dropping broad hints here and there about what would happen if the Big Steel gang went profit rustling. Some of the boys from over at the FBI dropped in on some reporters, in the middle of the night, reporters who had been careless enough to report on the doings of Big Steelers. From another spread word went out that price raisers would be denied the right to bid on civic betterment projects of the New Frontier. So it went, a hint here, a pressure there, a threat another place until the Big Steel outfit went back to their spread wondering who had ever been silly enough to suggest making a profit.

ENOUGH OF ALLEGORY, THOUGH. Bluntly, Mr. Kennedy by the devious means of crass, power politics, caused the steel industry to abandon any idea of a price raise at this time. By implication, big business was painted as a gang of evil doers with no conscience or sense of responsibility. To be prosperous business appears to be an evil thing.

I TAKE ISSUE WITH THIS type of thinking. I freely admit that business has committed abus-

Burton Farm Bureau Members Honored By 4-H

BURTON, Apr. 26 — Burton Farm Bureau members were present at the April meeting of the Burton 4-H club; the meeting honored them. The flag salute was led by Don Keyorkian, and the Club Pledge by Gary Reed. It was announced by President Ann Kennedy that Fair Books are out, and a Porterville Fair Booth committee was named, headed by Priscilla Shires and Gary Reed.

It was reported that a Field day held at the Fair grounds on April 1, took the place of the Project tour. At the next meeting members will elect new officers for the ensuing year. Nominating committee will consist of Sparky Noble, Jim Lombardi, Katie Cunningham, Gary Reed, Sharon Ryan and Cathy Vossler.

A fashion show was presented by Pat Cone, Patty Ryan, Barbara Alexander, Mary Rodgers, and Susan Rodgers. Roger Davenport, club reporter, gave a resume of the year.

Project reports were given by Pat Shires, Julia Owens, Priscilla Shires, Pat Cone, Gail Johnson, Betty Bleukle, Gary Weisenberger, and Dick Pratt. The calling committee will be the same as those who gave project reports.

For the program for the evening, Dr. C. S. Crane gave a talk on immunization of animals. Refreshments were served following the meeting.

es. They have cut prices, monopolized and striven for profits, but of this welter of free competition and ingenuity has come the greatest productivity the world has ever seen. And who has reaped the benefits? The public. We have more cars, more TVs, more indoor plumbing than any other country. We have goods and services that are undreamed of in other lands, all within our reach. Were these produced by politicians with a slate of starry-eyed theories? No. They were produced by business, big and small, fighting and feuding in free competition for the consumer dollar.

IF MR. KENNEDY WANTS to protect the public from the excesses of big business, let him start in with the biggest business of them all: The Federal Government.

Two Grades Considered For Beef On Market

WASHINGTON, D.C., Apr. 26—A dual grading system for beef on the market is now being considered by the U.S. department of agriculture.

A "quality grade", which indicates palatability of meat and which has been used for a quarter-century, would be continued; second grade would relate to "cutability", the percentage of salable meat which the retailer can cut from a beef carcass.

The anhis are so bountiful this year that we expect to find a customer has stood still too long and become infested with them. So far we have seen every color, every shape, and every size, along with every cure from planting garlic to digging up the bush. We still suspect that spraying with Malathion is the surest and the best answer although some others appear more interesting.

While your husband is out feeding and otherwise annoying a new crop of fish, it is time to feed the camellias. We have a special diet for them which comes pre-cooked, ready to use, and conveniently packaged in sizes from two and one half to twenty-five pounds. A light mulch of peat moss is also on the menu. This may be purchased in either the family or apartment size according to your individual needs.

It is time to feed most everything else from roses to lawns with Ortho 16-16-8 fertilizer. This is a long lasting plant food which may even be good for people. It can be applied by any one armed wife with wet fingernail polish in a matter of minutes. Even faster if you borrow one of our spreaders to apply it with.

YOUR LEGISLATOR AT WORK!

SENATOR
J. HOWARD WILLIAMS
32nd District
California State Legislature

Our trio of 1962 legislative sessions are still fresh on the history books, but interim committees are already back at work, preparing for the 1963 regular session. Seven assembly committees or subcommittees have scheduled hearings in various communities around the state during the next couple of weeks. Two of them will have been held before you read this.

Topics to be taken up vary from a highly technical one, the results of repressurization on control of subsidence in the City of Long Beach, and on secondary recovery of oil from the pool under the city, to one which could produce some heat, the space needs of state agencies. A parade of interested witnesses is expected to appear and discuss the many subjects.

One group, the adult education subcommittee of the assembly, took up again the investigation of the need for training and retraining unemployed workers which it started last fall. At its recent meeting many labor and management experts on personnel utilization and training, as well as prominent educators, discussed the complexities involved.

Those present were reminded that a bill which proposed to set up a state commission on automation was defeated in the last moments of our first special session this year. It passed both houses in different versions. A conference committee agreed to a compromise, but it was rejected

OPEN HOUSE AT HOSPITAL SET FOR MAY 3

PORTERVILLE, Apr. 26—Open house program at the Porterville State hospital has been set for Thursday, May 3, with the day to start at 9 a.m. and continue through the evening.

Conducted ward tours are on the program, plus special motion picture showings, and a patients' dance, starting at 7 p.m. and open to the public, with the hospital's Protestant and Catholic choirs.

by the assembly, thus killing the bill.

The word "automation" has come to be a "dirty" word, used to conjure up unpleasant visions of long breadlines in our industrial centers, and starving mothers and children. The group was told that this derogatory usage of the word has become more prevalent since electronic data processing equipment went into wide employment. References to the number of white-collar workers who will lose jobs because of it are frequent in the press, on TV and radio. In flat contradiction to such agitating statements are the reports of the U. S. division of labor statistics, which show that clerical employment in the nation rose from 9,152,000 in 1957 to 9,861,000 in 1961, and that it is still rising. The word "automation", it was said, is just the most modern synonym for good old-fashioned "mechanization."

Automation frees men from hard or routine physical labor to work at jobs of a higher order, it was pointed out. Its effects are precisely the same as those of "mechanization," or any other technological change. So far as creation of new jobs, or destruction of old ones, it acts no differently than have the millions of inventions put to productive use in the U. S. since a continuous automatic flour mill was first built in 1784. Changing consumer tastes, new scientific discoveries, and plain mismanagement of business enterprises have long had a more vicious effect on the number of jobs.

What little hard core there seems to be left in the unemployment problem created by automation is the joint responsibility of labor, management and education. Two important factors seem involved in any particular situation. First is the need of additional basic education, (training, to give it another name) for those individuals who were deprived of it early in life. Second is the need of retraining in new job skills for those whose current jobs have actually been outmoded by new products, processes, or machines. Adult education, if tailored to these needs, can serve a useful function in smoothing the way for automation, which history demonstrates, frees men from hard labor.

FRED PIERRE, right, president of the Porterville Rotary club and manager of the Porterville branch of the Bank of America, is shown receiving a 50-pound plaque from Jim Howell, the 1962-63 president of Rotary, at last week's meeting. The sailing ship is a brass bank insignia that for many years hung above the doorway of the old Bank of America building in Porterville and was "rescued" by the late Everett Howell when the building was remodeled. Engraved plate on the plaque credits Pierre with being the most expensive president the Porterville Rotary club ever had, the expensive referring to the fines that he has levied on members. Pierre will leave Porterville soon for a new position with the bank in San Francisco. (Farm Tribune photo)

WHERE'S THE FOREST?

Certainly the noisiest news in recent days concerning business has been the clash between the Administration and the steel industry. Wide spread sensational coverage was given this matter. In the middle of it all is found the millions of us little people . . . many of whom are investors. Some got excited and sold, reminding of the days of the "heart attacks." Experienced investors are claiming this reaction as simply a case of "They (the sellers) can't see the forest for the trees."

Why this comment? Let's consider the entire "forest."

Most are aware that the general trend of securities prices has been erratic since the beginning of the year. Many reasons have been propounded — selling to raise money to pay income taxes, the threat of the European Common Market and the Administrations request for lower tariffs . . . You name it.

The total effect — the D. J. Industrial Average has been bobbing up and down like a fisherman's float . . . generally down . . . down some 7% from January 1, 1962.

Yes, prices are lower. Since prices in the securities market is a reflection of business activities, how's business?

Compared to year earlier figures, we find that currently Business Activity is UP 18%; Auto Production UP a whopping 57%; Electric-power output UP 9%; Freight carloadings UP 11%; Department store sales UP 14%. In spite of all this, stock prices are down.

It might be well to conclude from the above that we should indeed take a look at the "forest" . . . check current values, review investment positions in light of our objectives. We should be aware that, while no one can be certain of investment results, it has always been wise to invest when reactions occur.

BOATS, FISH, DELTA WATERS — BUT THERE'S A WOMAN ABOARD

A woman is a natural housekeeper and home beautifier, and no matter what the situation is, she never really quits performing these tasks.

If you take her to a football game she mentally landscapes the field, allowing ivy to climb up the goal posts. She thinks the place would be just lovely with white wrought-iron love seats cattered here and there on the field. She cries with pain at the sight of the bareness of a basketball floor. She would put a braided rug in the free throw area with provincial style sofas on each side for the boys to rest on during the free-throw breaks. And a baseball field has endless possibilities. Now, if we would just put a waterfall type fountain in center-field and scatter various flowering plants here and there throughout the outfield and then entwine a winding gravel path amongst the whole mess we would really have something. This is all bad enough, but it gets worse. Never, never, ever take a woman fishing.

Last year, the father-in-law, in a compromise with old age, bought a 23 ft. Chris Craft boat. It was a sturdy craft, fit for the roughest weather that the Sacramento River delta has to offer. The mother-in-law looked at it and thought it was cute. Shortly afterwards the boat blossomed out with curtains. And then odds and ends of housekeeping equipment began to appear inside the boat, a pretty blue plastic bread box, a dainty polyethene ice box, a shining white peg board from which dangled cooking utensils. She even put curtains around the marine toilet, which stood in the bow of the boat, an open white shining tribute to masculinity. We were overcome with disgust.

It became very apparent that the mother-in-law was leaving the shore for the wind-blown spray of the delta. By way of discouragement we repeated the tale of the Titanic. We told of the salty language that prevails when the anchor ropes become snarled, and of the rough weather that could very easily upset the delicate female stomach.

Last week we made our annual Easter vacation fishing trip and when we left the dock the mother-in-law was shouting directions from the cabin like Captain Queeg. When we anchored and began fishing she started housekeeping. "Excuse me, but would you mind getting me a bucket of water, there's something wrong with the plumbing back here, you have big strong arms, would you open this jar?" And so the story went, during our four days on the river we got so many buckets of water that water level in the river was visibly lowered.

Then she decided to fish. Only she didn't have faith in our time-tested methods. She thought that no self-respecting fish would ever touch a chunk of smelly sardine bait. She thought that bubble gum or orange peel would be much more appealing to the eye of the wiley striped bass. We laughed and told her to go back up front and make some more curtains. She caught an 11-pound striper.

Shortly afterwards we were detected slyly looping the anchor rope about her ankle, and thereafter we were reduced to the rank of bow anchor-puller.

CHAPEL CHIMES

By
Rev. N. J. Thompson

The Bible says to owe not any man. But today we follow the example of Government and try to owe as much as we can!

It's too easy to say, "Just charge it, please." Modern easy credit, with no money down and three years to pay, has surrounded us with a sea of debts. Life has become an unending series of "easy" monthly payments.

The combined debts of all the people, business, and government agencies in the USA have reached the staggering total of $875 BILLIONS! The interest alone on this burden of debt is costing Mr. and Mrs. America almost $50 billion a year.

Spiritually, too, we are all deeply in debt. We owe a loving God a great burden of debt that we can never repay — for physical blessings. Above all, we are indebted to God for the Holy Bible, and for His grace and truth revealed through Jesus Christ, whose sacrificial death on Calvary's cross offers us forgiveness and the hope of an eternal heavenly home, without a mortgage, and needing no TV, telephone, furniture, or car!

Our deep debt to God involves us in obligations to our fellowmen. The great apostle Paul wrote: "I am debtor both to the Greek and to the barbarian." It was not money he owed, but something much more valuable — the Good News that Jesus Christ is the Saviour of the world.

All honest Christians feel constrained to pay their spiritual debts, just as honest men are glad to discharge their financial obligations.

IF YOU PLAN CAR TRIP INTO CANADA CHECK YOUR LIABILITY INSURANCE

PORTERVILLE, Apr. 26—Visitors to the Seattle World's fair who plan to take an automobile trip into Canada may run into trouble under new changes in the British Columbia automobile liability law, the Porterville Insurance Agents association has announced.

The British Columbia Financial Responsibility law has been amended to require minimum auto liability coverage in the amount of a single limit of $25,000. ($25,000 for bodily injury, liability or property liability in any one case) effective June 1, 1962. Failure to have evidence of such insurance at the time of accident in British Columbia requires, under law, impoundment of the vehicle.

California minimum financial responsibility requirements are substantially below the new British Columbia requirements. American companies licensed to write automobile insurance in British Columbia are, by statute, required to provide policy holders with a single limit of $25,000. In addition, many insurance companies are interpreting their policies cov-

Price paid - $2,000 per acre. Actually, in order to meet school budget requirements, the property will be acquired in three separate purchases, each for one third of the total, with balance covered by option; the deal will be completed in December of next year. (Farm Tribune - Industrial Aviation photo) attendants will receive western shirts and trophies.

The Annual Queen contest is held in conjunction with the 15th Annual Porterville Round-Up which is held at the Rocky Hill arena on May 5 and 6, at 2 p.m. Top rodeo contestants of the nation will be competing for World Championship points on the rough rodeo stock furnished by Christians Bros. of Eugene, Oregon.

Mel Lambert, Salem, Oregon, will handle the mike, and Wilbur Plaugher, recipient of the 1961 award for outstanding service to the sport of rodeo by the International Rodeo Management association, will be on hand to protect the cowboys as bull fighter, and ering Bodily and Property Damage automobile liability to meet British Columbia requirements. Not all companies are doing this and anyone planning to drive into British Columbia is advised to check with his insurance agent to determine coverage.

The agent will also arrange for the pink Non-Resident Motor-Vehicle Liability Insurance Card, issued by the Province of British Columbia, which specifically states liability coverage. Properly filled out and signed by the agent, this card can be offered as evidence of adequate automobile insurance coverage.

Owen Hoover

Hoover, at Springville. He got a riding job in Frazier valley with Will and Louis Gill, and recalls one cattle drive, about 1907 or 1908, when he helped move 500 head from Frazier valley into Squaw valley, east of Visalia.

"We held along the foothills," Hoover says, "and took about three days to make the drive."

Before coming to California, Hoover had no experience with horses; he started to ride for the Gills "because that was the first job that came along", but he found that he liked horses, and, through the years, he has made both a hobby and a business of horse training.

At present he operates a boarding and training stable on the north edge of the city of Porterville.

But there were other jobs along the way. In 1910 he went to work as cook for Scotty Calderwood in Porterville's historic Scotty's Chop House; in 1916 he took a job with the Associated Oil company, operating a new business for those days — a service station, located at Main and Olive streets. Hoover recalls that gasoline was delivered to the station by tank wagon, pulled by a team of mules.

In 1918 Associated Oil sent Hoover to Sacramento, from where he worked most of northern California for the company. But he quit in 1920 and returned to Porterville, going to work for Parsons and Scruggs in their combination gasoline, tire and auto upholstering business.

In June of 1921 Hoover married the former Annella Weston, of Visalia, whose family were pioneer Tulare county cattle people; he took a job with Cad Houghton, the largest horse dealer in the area, who kept from 125 to 150 head of horses most of the time at his ranch west of Porterville.

It was from Houghton that Hoover "really learned the horse business", working for him "off and on" for several years.

In 1936 Hoover became associated with the late N. H. Leggett, early-day Porterville business man, who maintained a stable and kept eight head of black and white pintos, with silver-mounted outfits, as a parade unit.

"We rode in practically every major parade on the west coast," Hoover says, "and the Leggett horses were one of the famous parade units of the state back in those days."

Following the death of Leggett about 12 years ago, Hoover bought the stable, and has continued to operate it. The dancing horse, "Diana", which was the youngest of the Leggett string, gained a state-wide reputation as Hoover continued to ride in the leading parades in the West.

It is doubly fitting that Hoover appear as the Grand Marshal of the Porterville Roundup parade, since back in 1937 he assisted with organization of the group that sponsors the Roundup, the Orange Belt Saddle club.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover have two surviving children — Mrs. Gene White, of Santa Clara, and Ralph Hoover, a member of the faculty at Cal Poly, where he is the only college instructor of horseshoeing in the United States.

ANOTHER CHECK - for $50 - was this week presented to Buck Shaffer, left, director of the Porterville Panther band, for the On To Seattle fund of the band and Madrigal Singers. The presentation was made by Carroll Simmons for the Independent Order of Foresters, Court Sierra No. 1185. This organization is also staging a dance, Saturday night, at the VFW hall in Porterville, with music by Leroy Isom, and his Rockin' Chairs, as a benefit for the Seattle fund. Dancing will start at 9 p.m.; donation is $1.00; all proceeds will go to the band and singers. (Hammond Studio photo)
